

Hello, I am writing to let you know that I cannot recall a more blatant perversion of the public interest element of broadcasting that you are entrusted with overseeing.

I speak of Sinclair Broad-casting and thier unabashed effort to frighten potential voters with the airing of a political message disguised as a documentary production. At any other time it would simply be biased programing, but in the course of an election year that possesses such a potential for democratic discourse, it would seem prudent that your agency, responsible for servicing the entire United States would desire to avoid becoming a "chad" in the 2004 National elections.

Thank you for listening, John Manchen
